

THE

ROUNDUP

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1999. The public sector has grown from 10% of the economy to 15% of the economy.

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector. This has led to a number of initiatives, including the introduction of competition, the restructuring of public services, and the introduction of new management practices.

One of the main reasons for the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector is the increasing pressure on public resources. The government has to spend more on public services, but it has to do so with a limited budget.

Another reason for the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector is the increasing demand for public services. The population is growing, and there is a growing demand for public services such as health care, education, and social services.

There are a number of ways in which the efficiency of the public sector can be improved. These include the introduction of competition, the restructuring of public services, and the introduction of new management practices.

One of the most important ways in which the efficiency of the public sector can be improved is by introducing competition. This can be done by allowing private companies to compete for public contracts.

Another way in which the efficiency of the public sector can be improved is by restructuring public services. This can be done by merging public services, or by transferring public services to private companies.

Finally, the efficiency of the public sector can be improved by introducing new management practices. This can be done by introducing new management systems, or by training public sector employees in new management practices.

There are a number of challenges associated with improving the efficiency of the public sector. These include the need to ensure that public services are not compromised, and the need to ensure that public resources are used effectively.

Despite these challenges, it is clear that there is a need to improve the efficiency of the public sector. This is essential for ensuring that public services are provided in a cost-effective and efficient manner.

There are a number of ways in which the efficiency of the public sector can be improved. These include the introduction of competition, the restructuring of public services, and the introduction of new management practices.

Foreword

You Are the Sculptor of Your Own Existence.

The goal you set is the model by which you work and the present is the clay with which you are ever working—molding your tomorrow by your deeds of today.

You can't remodel the past—the future is only yours to anticipate—but NOW is your time—and my time—to shape as we will.

—RODERICK G. STEVENS

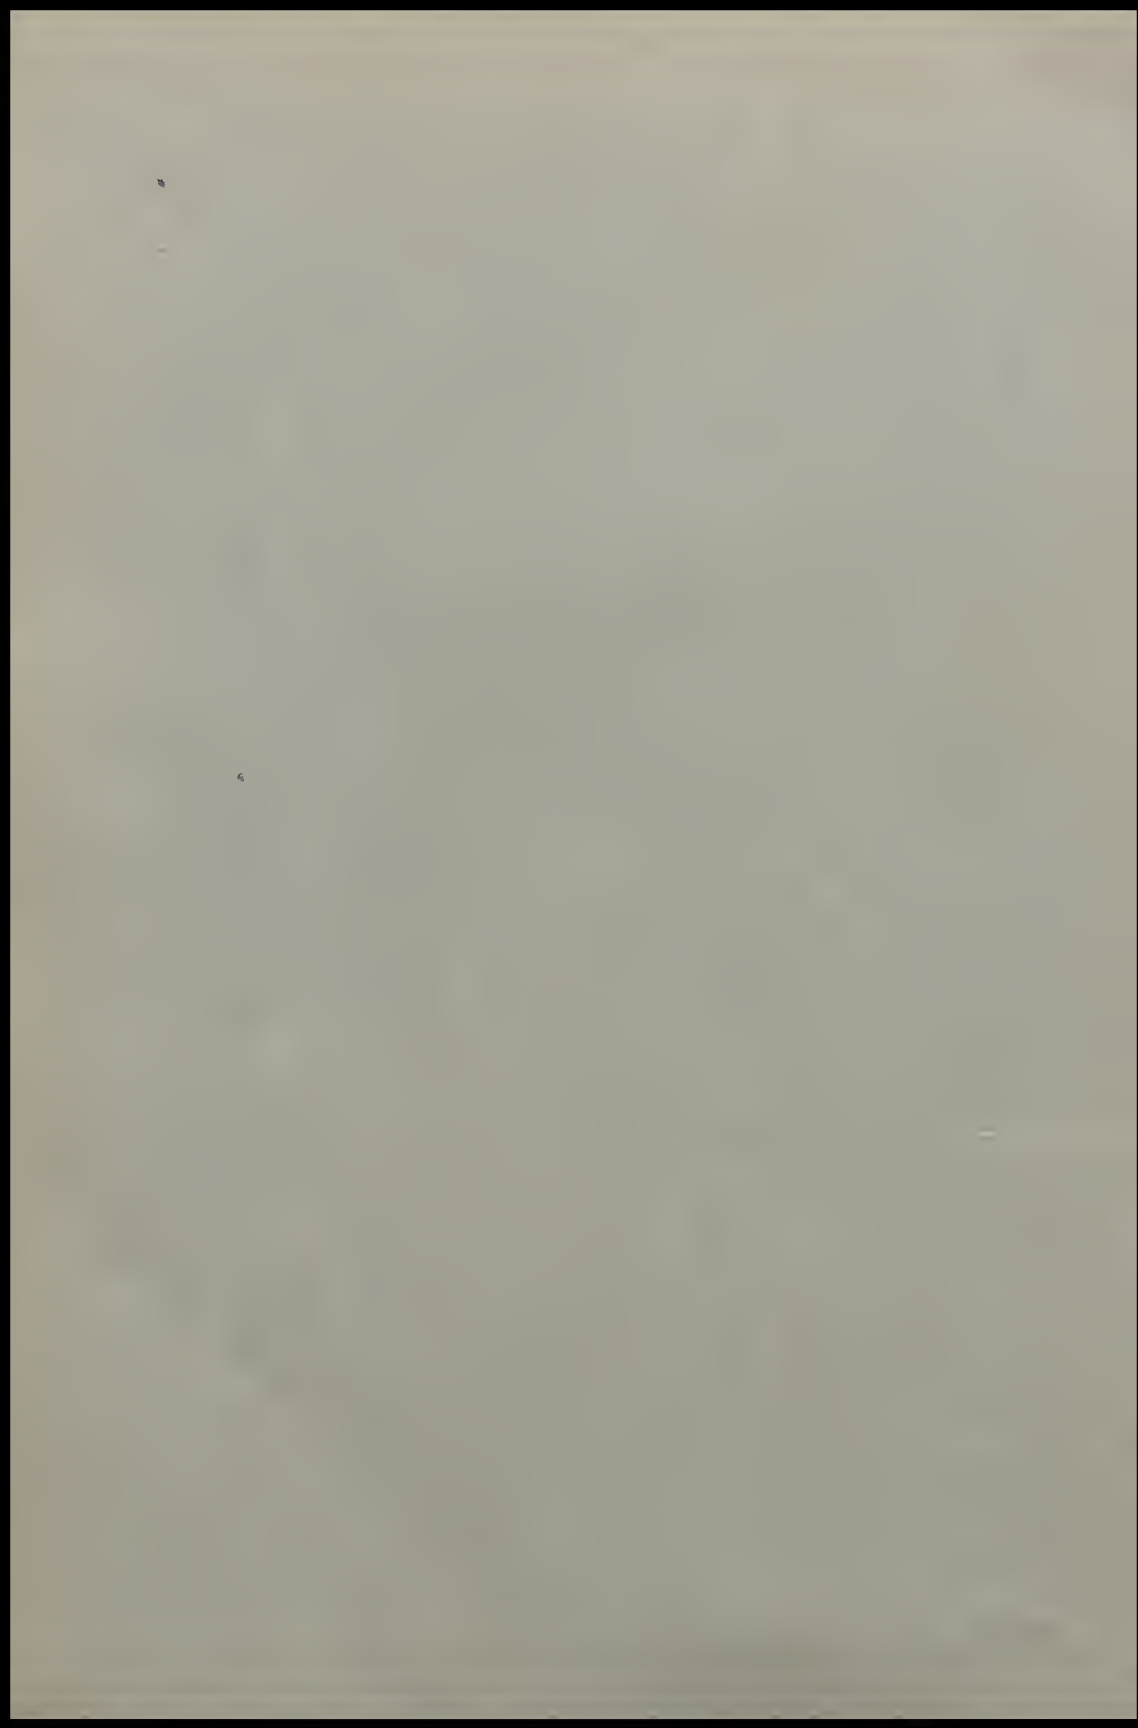

WELFARE

The world—your world—is not measured by the reach of your arm nor the horizon of your vision, but by the never ceasing influence of your thoughts and acts.

These are always making ripples on the surface of time—and those ripples are eternally spreading beyond your most distant expectations.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Act 1983, 1993). The prevalence of mental health problems has increased in the UK, and this has led to a corresponding increase in the number of people with mental health problems who are in contact with the criminal justice system.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the mental health needs of people in the criminal justice system. The Mental Health Act 1983 (MHA) provides a framework for the management of people with mental health problems who are in contact with the criminal justice system. The MHA sets out the principles of care for people with mental health problems, and provides a framework for the management of people with mental health problems who are in contact with the criminal justice system.

Nature plays no favorites in apportioning her day time. The sun rises at the appointed hour for all alike and thus gives every man an equal start with his fellow workers.

HUMOR ODDS & ENDS

Smile into the face of the world and a smile comes back.

—RODERICK G. STEVENS

An ingenious American has invented a device to prevent such motoring accidents as arise from over-speeding. He describes his contrivance as follows:

"While the car is running fifteen miles an hour a white bulb shows on the radiator, at twenty-five miles a green bulb appears, at forty a red bulb, and, when the driver begins to bat 'em out around sixty per, a music box under the seat begins to play 'Nearer, My God, To Thee.'"

A letter received by a corn syrup manufacturing company.

"Dear Sirs: I ate three cans of your corn syrup and it has not helped my corns a bit."

A traveler was going down the road asking about the present business conditions. He met a man digging potatoes and asked him. He said:

"My business is picking up."

The next man was hauling lime and he replied:

"Mine is slack."

Entering a small town he sighted an old man with a wooden leg sitting on a porch and asked him. He said:

"I can't kick."

The traveler went into a small store and the keeper replied:

"My business is on a good foundation; it's on the rocks."

Boy returning home from college sets down his bag and stumbles over it. "Hello, Pop."

Father: "Hello, son, how are you?"

Son: "Just getting over the grip, dad."

Mr. Irwin (in Algebra): "Betty, stand aside so I can see your figure."

Chemistry Teacher: "Why does lightning turn milk sour?"

Thoughtful Pupil: "Because it does not know how to conduct itself."

Mr. Carrothers: "I am tempted to give this class a test."

Barbara Stults, worried: "Yield not to temptation."

Bob Sandler: "What's happened to your girl?"

Ken Sayre: "She had her face lifted."

Bob Sandler: "You don't say. Whom do you suspect took it?"

Landlady: "I think you had better board elsewhere."

Boarder: "Yes, I often had."

Landlady: "Often had what?"

Boarder: "Had better board elsewhere."

Mother uses cold cream.

Father uses lather.

My girl uses powder.

At least, that's what I gather.

A message from the railroad section foreman to the roadmaster said: "No, 6 did not whistle. Send me a new hand car."

Show girls may have to answer lots of questions when applying for a job, but it's really only a matter of form.

Did you hear about the man who got splinters in his throat from drinking wood alcohol?

Here lie the remains of a radio fan,

Now mourned by many relations;

He went to a powder mill, smoking his pipe.

And was picked up by twenty-one stations.

Father fell upon the ice

Because he could not stand.

Father saw the Stars and Stripes,

We saw our Father land.

I never sausage eyes as thine,
 And if you'll butcher hand in mine,
 And liver round me every day,
 We'll meat life's frown with life's caress
 And cleaver road to happiness.

Mrs. Jones: "I want some cigarettes for my husband."

Clerk: "Cork?"

Mrs. Jones: "Is that better than tobacco?"

He sowed his wild oats for a night mare.

Judge: "Ten days or ten dollars.
 Choose quick."

Bill Ransom: "I'll take my time."

Traffic sign in Pennsylvania town:
 "Slow, No Hospital."

"The boss just made me manager of his doughnut factory."

"Are you in charge of everything?"

"Yeah, the hole works."

Ad in newspaper: "For Sale: A cow that gives five quarts of milk a day, a set of golf sticks, a set of law books, and a very fine overcoat."

The naked hills lie wanton to the breeze,
 The fields are nude, the groves un-frocked;

Bare are the quivering limbs of the shameless trees—

What wonder is it that the corn is shocked?

"Give me some ice cream."

"What kind do you want, sunny?"

"Doesn't make any difference; the woman's blind."

CHRONOLOGICAL LIST OF TROPHIES

Roosevelt High School was established in 1923 and in its thirteen years of history, the different sports, classes and clubs have won a total of eighty-five plaques and trophies plus the ribbons. The different sports combined won the majority of these historical markers of progress. Basketball has won the most, followed close behind by the music department, track teams, golf teams and debate teams.

Other departments are now entering the different fields of competition and are striving to place more trophies in the cases.

Another sign that our trophies are growing in number is that a second trophy case was built this semester to house the ever-growing number of trophies.

Roosevelt High is still a yearling compared to the years the other high schools have been established but the momentum which we are steadily gaining is showing in the different fields of competition.

The following list of the trophies is arranged according to the department or sport winning it and placed in chronological order.

BASKET BALL

1. I. H. S. A. A. sectional 1928.
2. I. H. S. A. A. sectional 1929.
3. I. H. S. A. A. district 1929.

5. I. H. S. A. A. sectional 1931.
6. I. H. S. A. A. district 1931.
7. I. H. S. A. A. consolation 1931.
8. Leeman Under Club Trophy 1931, given for winning the city basketball championship three years in succession. Roosevelt has won the city championship from 1928 to 1934.
9. I. H. S. A. A. sectional 1932.
10. I. H. S. A. A. district 1932.
11. State Champions 1932.
12. I. H. S. A. A. sectional 1933.
13. I. H. S. A. A. district 1933.
14. I. H. S. A. A. sectional 1934.
15. I. H. S. A. A. district 1934.

HOUSE RULES

Towels changed weekly. Dogs not allowed in the bunks. Candles and hot water charged extra. Board, $2 per square foot. Meals extra. Spiked boots must be removed at night. Guests are requested not to speak to the dump waiter. Anyone troubled with nightmare will find a halter on the bedpost. If the rooms get too warm, open the window and see the fire escape. Baseballists desiring a little practice will find a pitcher on the stand. Don't worry about paying your bill; the house is supported on the foundation. The hotel is convenient to all cemeteries. Hearses for hire at 25 cents a second. Guests wishing to do a little driving will find hammer and nails in the closet. Guests wishing to get up without being called can have self-raising flour for supper. If the lamp goes out, take a feather out of the pillow; that's light enough for anyone.

Harold Jaynes to Clerk: "Father wants to know if it's true that there is a tobacco trust."

Clerk: "Yes, that is quite right, my man."

Harold Jaynes: "Then father would like to be trusted for a package."

I play a musical instrument some but only for my own amazement.

Charity Solicitor: "Will you help the 'Old Ladies Home'?"

Homer Maize: "Where are they?"

Every man may have his price, but how many are worth it?

The barber is the village cut up.

Three mysteries: Love, women, and hash.

Then there is the fellow that takes the penny to bed with him in case he tosses in his sleep.

Willie, age 12, looking at a kiddie car he has received for his birthday: "I'll bet the guy that gave me that gave Venus de Milo a bracelet."

Bill Vogt: "Why do you paint the inside of your chicken coop?"

Tom Little: "To keep the hen from picking the grain out of the wood."

Mr. Carrothers: "Who established the law of diminishing returns?"

Jack Nichols: "My laundryman."

Rowing Coach: "You want to come on the crew huh? Ever rowed before?"

Student: "Only a horse, sir!"

Then there was the man who was so lazy that he put the baby outdoors and let the sky rocket.

"Put 'em up thar!"

The crisp command rang out above the tinny rattle of the cheap piano in "Ye Olde Lavender Kettle" Saloon, and forty pairs of hands shot into the air, with a deafening report.

Forty pairs of eyes watched the masked stranger in the doorway. "Drap them thar shootin' irons," continued the even voice, sighting down the cold muzzle of the six gun he carried, "or I'll empty the contents of this magazine (Adv.)." And by his tone the dissolute crowd of cattle-rustlers knew that he meant what he said.

"What you want of us-all, pardner?" whined Saunders.

"I came fer Prairie Rose," the stranger replied. "Her with the voice like a nightingale, whut comes out o' nowhere to warm our hearts with song—Gawd bless 'er."

The beaded curtains parted, and the beautiful dancer stared at the bearded stranger in wide-eyed surprise. Gently he reached down inside his dust-stained shirt and drew forth a tiny locket on a gold chain.

"Mother," said the stranger simply. McCall.

Boss: "There's $10 gone from my cash drawer, Jimmy; you and I were the only people who has keys to that drawer."

Jim: "Well, s'pose we each pay $5 and say no more about it."

Betty Harper: "I have such a cold, I'll have to do something for it."

Charles Bradshaw: "Why should you do anything for it? What has it ever done for you?"

Betty Williams: "Waiter, waiter, there's a fly in my soup."

Waiter: "Ah, that's all right, he can swim."

HARD TO BE GAME

Now it seems that people are supposed to be game at all times but what does it mean to be "game," really game?

You take Bets, she'd call up and say, "How about it, big boy? Are you game for an evening out tonight?"

I'd say, "O. K."

She'd reply, "Well, it's going to be at the Plaza."

Of course Kitty, her girl friend, has to go and her boy-friend always turns out to be some handsome guy without any dough.

Bets gets kinda fickle at them places and she picks out some yap with a man, mountain physique eating alone, and sends them absent smiles toward him, (you know the kind), and if she gets a bite (and she usually does) he drifts over and asks her to dance, wonderin' who the punk is she's with, (that's me).

So they dance! ! !

Then I'd say to myself, "Just who'd he think I was, a yoco, or sumpin'? I'd like to punch him right in the kisser. I'll bet he don't know what a spark plug is! (I'm a mechanic.)"

Bets would return to the table with this Mr. X and says he's alone so wouldn't it be nice if he could squat at our table, for he was so lonesome. And I'd say, "Yea, why don'tcha?"

Mr. X then said he come from Bash waa and Bets would say, "No, I've never been there but I knew an awful sweet girl from there. I think her name was Dixon."

He says, "You don't mean Connelly, do you?"

And she'd say, "Perhaps that was it."

And he asks, "Wasn't it Helen Connelly?"

And she says, "Yes I think so."

Thus they spend the next four dances trying to coincide on their friend.

Finally the waiter presents the check and of course Kitty's boy-friend is always check-blind, (her boy-friends are all gifted that way).

Bets would then say, "Poor old Charlie, (that's me) is all tired out so I guess we'll have to take him home, Heury (who is Mr. X), as soon as he pays the check."

So now I spend my Saturday nights at home, alone.

"Yes, ma'am," answered Buck, promptly, "Hash."

MINNIE THE MOTH

Once upon a time, long, long ago, there was a great king who had a beautiful, beautiful daughter. Now the king wanted his daughter to marry a great king like himself, but like all bad girls she was in love with a loafer prince from the next province. The king hated this prince because he thought the prince had bad blood in him. However, his daughter thought the prince was her dream man.

The king thought and thought and thought of some way to keep his daughter from marrying this prince and finally hit upon an idea. He told the prince that he would give him a beautiful white ermine coat and if, in five years, he had not lost a single hair from his beautiful coat he could marry his daughter.

Well, the prince thought this would be an easy task and took the beautiful white ermine coat away to his castle in the next province. He locked it in his strongest room and posted a guard of one hundred men in front of the door. Every day he counted the hairs in this beautiful white ermine coat. The first year all the hairs were on the coat, the second year all the hairs were on the coat; the third year all the hairs were on the coat; the fourth year all the hairs were on the coat.

All this time the king was informed on the coat situation and near the last part of the fourth year began to get worried. The king decided to call up his old friend, Minnie the Moth. When the king told Minnie about the situation she was at once sympathetic and told the king not to worry, that she would help him out of the scrape.

As soon as she left the palace of the king she flew away to the castle of the loafer prince in the next province. When she got there she flew in one of the windows. After she got in, she flew through all the halls until she found the room where the prince kept the beautiful white ermine coat. She thought at first she could not get in the room but at last she found she could squeeze through the key hole.

When Minnie got into the room she saw that the prince was counting the hairs on his beautiful white ermine coat. She quickly flew up behind this prince and ate three of the hairs from the beautiful white ermine coat. When the prince finished counting the hairs on the coat he found that he was three hairs short. He thought this was odd so he counted the hairs all over again and this time found that he was still three hairs short. When he finished counting the hairs the second time he sat down and began to cry and cry and cry. When Minnie saw the prince crying she felt sorry for him and asked him what was the matter.

"Little moth," said the prince, "I am in love with a beautiful girl and if I lose any of the hairs from this coat I cannot marry her, and there are three hairs missing."

When Minnie heard this she was sorry for what she had done and sat down and began to cry and cry and cry with the prince.

We all know what a sad sight this was because everyone has seen a Moth Ball.

A small boy was leading a donkey past an army encampment, when two sergeants saw him and decided to have some fun with him.

"What are you holding on to your brother so tightly for, Sonny?" kidded one of the soldiers.

"So he won't get loose and join the army," the boy replied without cracking a smile.

A STRUGGLE BETWEEN HILLS

Five minutes had passed and still there was not a sound. Everyone standing around was quiet, not even a murmur.

There was a steep hill and the brave young man was in a very tough spot. A fraction of an inch and it would be certain death.

Many times this young fellow had been in this same predicament but for this one occasion it seemed different. Certain fortunes hinged on inches and if unsuccessful—well, then it would be too bad.

Once before the young lad lived through a situation exactly like this one, but became so enraged with madness that he threw his best friend into a tree, breaking him from limb to limb.

Shhh! Quiet everyone! Here comes the deciding blow. Yes, there it comes rolling along taking the hill, slow but sure. It looks like success! Yes, it seems certain! In it goes, but it's rolling around the rim. Wait a minute now. It is; it isn't—my heavens, he has missed.

Ohhh! Ohhh! Come the groans! He has failed in this crucial spot. Watch out everyone, this mad lad is going to throw his dynamite, for he has just missed a ten foot putt which would have meant a syndicate.

Father ruefully gazed on his last dollar. "Money has wings and house rents make it fly," he said.

"Yes," said his fifteen-year old son, "and some houses have wings, for I've seen many a house fly."

"You're smarter than your old dad, maybe, son, but I always thought that no part of a house except the chimney flue!"

THE DUMPS

(The Gloomy Mid-West Story)

Minnie Timkins stared out of the window across the desolate prairie, drab and flat and hopeless. A wet rain dripped from the eaves, like the cold water tap in the kitchen sink. She thought of the kitchen sink, piled high with last week's breakfast dishes, on which the grease had hardened in gray lumps. They had not eaten since last Thursday.

The door slammed. Eben shuffled to the coat closet to hang up his coat. She did not raise her eyes: "The baby died today, Eben."

He did not reply. He had hung himself in the coat-closet, inside his coat.

There was a revolver in the top bureau drawer, but she was too weary to cross the room to get it. Outside the window the rain dripped steadily over the dull, empty, futile prairie.

Drip. Drip.

She broke her arm at the elbow, just to hear it snap.

Transition.

ODE TO A NOSE

Snuffle, snuffle, little nose
Which upon my visage grows
I pray you—give me some repose.

My stock of hankies you depleted
And still you glimmer like a beet;
Yea, even though I soak my feet
In mustard—still I know de feat.

Prithee, prithee, little nose,
Do not let us come to blows.
I beg of you give me some repose,
Else—fie upon you, wanton nose.

Jack Nichols: "No; new top, old car."

When our hearts are full of hope;
But 'tis harder still to find a towel
When our eyes are full of soap.

THE ROUNDUP—1936

Joe Slackgarter down in Van Buren county was always against town projects. They town council one day decided they needed a fence around the cemetery. Joe said no, and when asked why, he said: "Well, there's nobody inside that can get out and there's nobody outside that wants in."

"They say a cat has nine lives, but I don't believe it."

"Huh, I do. Think of the frog that croaks every night."

Jack Lilly: "Why didn't you trump your opponent's ace last evening?"

Max Shriver: "I didn't have the heart."

All's fair in love and Roosevelt!

Bill Ransom: "May I have the next dance?"

Pat Patterson: "Sure, I don't want it."

ALAS! TOO LATE!

The English have an undying love for certain civilized things.

In a gorse bush a hundred yards beyond his trench lay Lieutenant Fitzhugh Throckmorton of the King's Own Rifles, asleep at his post. For hours he had lain there, searching the position of the enemy through his binoculars. Overcome by fatigue, he had nodded, drowned, and finally slumbered.

The sun hung low in the western mists when Throckmorton awoke. He glanced at his wrist watch and sprang to his feet with an oath. Regardless of peril, he turned and sprinted toward his trench. His was not a nature to count the risk when duty, however delayed, called. Every German sniper within range sent shot upon shot after the flying figure. The enemy's trenches took up the hunt and fairly blazed with rifle and machine-gun fire. The bullets hummed in Throckmorton's ears like a swarm of savage hornets. They snarled and bit at the turf about his feet like a pack of wolves.

With a last desperate burst of speed, his clothing tattered with bullet holes, the Lieutenant gained his trench and leaped down to its cover. His face wearing an expression of mingled hope and despair, he rushed to the bomb-proof dug out where sat his Colonel and brother officers. They looked up at him with cold eyes. One glance and Throckmorton's heart failed him. He was too late.

They had finished tea!

THE BUILDING OF THE SKYSCRAPER

By Jack Dalbey

Up and up she reels,
A silvery mass of steel.
The staccotto, stuttering, stammering gun
Of riveters, stamps the rivet's heel.

The grating, groaning grind of winches
Intersperses with the rest.
A grimy worker climbs and cinches
The steel cable to the clinches.

The fire-eater throws the rivet
To the helper with the bucket.
Slam! Bang! In she goes
Altogether just to build it.

Suddenly a shriek, a thud,
Buried deep into the mud.
Work goes on the same as ever,
Building o'er a dead man's blood.

Chug! Snort! Whistle! and steam,
The power winches groan and scream
On her way the giant girder
It set upon the top-most beam.

Bricks, bricks, bricks,—and bricks
A million and one more, altogether
Against the steam which jerks and kicks,
A-bringing to the top—more bricks.

At last, all finished, there she stands,
A gleaming pile of masonry.
She covers seven blocks of land.
Just built of steel, cement and sand.

The Cascade Laundry Co. congratulates you and wishes you success. Please notice the appearance of successful men and women in Des Moines, and see how their appearance reflects their success. Cascade is proud that most of these men and women rely on Cascade's various services to help them with this very important job.

NOT VERY FILLING

The food for reflection.
The toast of the town.
The cake of soap.
The apple of discord.
The taste of bliss.

The salt of earth.
The spirit of revelry.
The feast of reason.
The spice of a joke.
The milk of human kindness.
The peach of a girl.
The printer's pi.

My man has went,
He done me dirt.
How could I knew
He were a flirt?

Me hate he!
Me hate he!
Me wish him were die!
Him told I
Him love I
But, darn he, him lie.

Freshman: I am not prepared.
Sophomore: I haven't studied my lesson.

Junior: I don't know.

Senior: I don't believe I can add anything to what has already been said.
—Exchange.

You can always tell a senior
He's so sedately dressed.
You can always tell a junior
By the way he swells his chest.
You can always tell a sophomore
By his timid looks and such.
You can always tell a teacher,
But you sure can't tell her much!

Whey Cy Leland was a small child, his favorite sport was making mud pies.
One day, as he was busily baking, he happened to swallow a worm.

"Drink some water to wash it down," his excited father told him.

"Aw, let him walk down," Cy replied.

ANNUAL HUMOR

Speaking of grammatical errors, or, to satisfy the purists, errors in grammar, Lord Merley once said: "Neither you nor I am entirely ourselves."

His solecism was picked up by Miss Jacobs who inquired: "Then who else am we?"

It seems that the latest models of trans-Atlantic airships are being equipped with "Shark Absorbers."

Bill Humphrey—"When I marry, I'm going to marry my direct opposite."

Bob Price—"That shouldn't be hard, there are plenty of intelligent girls."

Then there was the man on the sinking ship that saw everyone grabbing life belts and jumping overboard. He thought they were stealing things, so he grabbed the cook stove and jumped overboard.

Jack Lilly: "Weren't you rather dilled after one-half year of writing jokes for the annual?"

Max Shriver: "No, but several pairs of scissors were."

"Do you know what author is noted for his large vocabulary?"

"Sure, Webster."

TYPING CLASS AT WORK

Little acts of foolishness
 Little words of sass
 All mixed up together
 Make the senior class.

A young college student named Fiddle
 Refused to accept his degree
 "My gosh," he said,
 "It's enough to be Fiddle
 "Without being Fiddle, D.D."

It's hard to tell
 Wot wood appear
 If this pome
 Weren't writ here.

Henry Karrett: "Just put it on the cuff."

Store Clerk: "Can't. I've got on short sleeves."

There was a young lady named Perkins
 Who was very fond of gerkins.
 One night in a thrice
 She ate so much spice
 That they pickled her internal workins'.

Mary, Mary, quite contrary
 How does your garden grow?
 With silver bells
 And cockle shells
 And the rest of the darn things haven't come up yet.

Janice Sedgwick: "What's the word?"

Billy: "Incorrectly."

There was a young lady named Young
What was an expert at wagging her tongue.

It happened one day

That her voice fled away,

And, Gee! Was it peaceful! Ho hum.

Student's Prayer

Onward! Onward!

O, time in thy flight,

Make the bell ring

Before I recite.

Henry: "Is she as sour as she looks?"

George: "Is she! Say, if she gazed at the sky on a starry night she would curdle the Milky Way."

DES MOINES

IOWA

An Iowa Organization for Iowans

Carbon Coal Company has been serving Des Moines home owners for more than a quarter of a century.

Our employees and the members of their families exceed in number the population of the county seat town of Indianola.

We operate three mines, separate fleets of motor trucks and cars for coal handling and delivery, fuel oil delivery, oil burner inspection and adjustment, besides our large office and sales force.

The considerable payroll involved in this complete organization forms a worthwhile addition to the buying power of the community and keeps in Iowa the money spent with us for A BETTER HEATING SERVICE.

We ask your patronage solely on the basis of satisfactory service.
